

Charting the Spirals of Consciousness

The Energy of Thirteen & Pleiadian-Earth Astrology

CULLEN BAIRD SMITH

We live in a world that is bound by time, and we measure our experiences on a linear scale oriented toward the past or the future. But the rest of the universe is not linear. Stars, planets, and other orbiting bodies in the galaxy move in circular or elliptical patterns. In fact, about 80 percent of known galaxies exist in a spiral form. We live in a spiralling universe; therefore, should we not recognise that as part of the universe, our consciousness also moves in spirals? And realising this, should we not understand that our own evolution could most easily be achieved by participating with spirals of energy, rather than restricting our development through our current focus on linear time – past and future?

When we move away from our focus on time we can begin to understand that everything in the universe is organised around the movement of energy. Energy is alive, conscious, and intelligent. It knows how to move and where to go for its most efficient application. It is also nonlinear. It arrives in waves, vibrations, or frequencies. Waves transport energy everywhere. In fact, all of life is about wave motion, and our experiences occur in wave motion, not in linear, fragmented parcels of time. We ourselves are waves of energy; we are not static, unchanging solid particles joined in some random fashion. Our bodies are even equipped to translate the vibrations of incoming energy into the experiences of our reality. This is how we interface with our third-dimensional world – our physical senses are designed to interpret vibrational signatures of energy.

Science has not yet been able to explain the deeper underlying structure of harmonics that form life. But recent scientific observations have revealed that our material world is not as solid as we may believe it to be. It consists of unrealised vibratory possibilities, which are rendered into the solid physical world we perceive through the energy of thought. Waves of energy manifest into physical form through interacting with other waves of energy. In other words, every thought we think affects every aspect of our reality.

Moving away from using time as our organising principle allows us to discover how to participate with other energies to create a different reality on Earth. The magnetic field of our planet broadcasts a very wide range of energetic frequencies that commingle with energies from the Sun, other planets, and other cosmic forces. Each of us is attuned to specific frequencies that are magnetically imprinted upon us when we are born. Understanding how these energies affect us is equivalent to understanding our purpose on Earth. How are we defined by a specific combination of frequencies, and how can we utilise that frequency combination to participate in human evolution?

At the quantum level, scientists perceive phenomena as either particles or waves, depending upon how they are measured. Particles are perceived to be stable and unchanging localisations in a quantum field of continually moving waves. We humans typically view ourselves as particles – stable, static, unchanging (for the most part) – rather than as waves. Once we are born, we lose the sense of being fluid, as our immediate sensory experience begins to override our earlier prenatal experience of energetic resonance. We forget about our earlier wave-like forms.

It is fundamentally unfeasible for us to believe that we are progressing in developmental strides when we do not understand nor are we in harmony with cosmic rhythms. By segmenting our experiences into blocks of time, especially focusing on a perceived past or hoped-for future, we have become ever more separated from each other and from Nature, stuck in the artificial rhythms of man-made time. We have further separated ourselves through a belief that everything that happens to us is local, meaning that it is manifested through cause and effect only. Nothing could be further from the truth. We actually live in a nonlocal universe, where everything can happen simultaneously, regardless of distance between objects or events.

Everything is connected simultaneously, and these connections are not affected by size or distance. Yet the energy of each instant is separate and distinct, and each energy adds to the energy that presented before it and contributes to the energy that follows it. To realise the potential available here we must begin to watch the energy of each moment and respond accordingly.

Our book, Pleiadian-Earth Energy Astrology: Charting the Spirals of Consciousness and the accompanying Pleiadian-Earth Energy Calendar, introduce energy as a potential – making us who we are and providing endless opportunities to unfold into our true selves. The revelatory new system acknowledges that each of us came to relate to the specific energies to which we are aligned, as well as to participate with every other available energy. We are here on Earth to fully explore each aspect of every energy, and to intelligently integrate the results of our exploration. We reach unity when we share our combined understanding and integration with each other. This is how our species can evolve.

Each of us seeks a deeper understanding of what makes us human, what makes us individual, and what governs our circumstances in life. No other system of astrology or cosmology remotely approaches the subtle levels of awareness that make the Pleiadian-Earth Energy system unique. For starters, it is based on the most mathematically stable, dynamic structure known to the third dimension: the spiral. From galaxies and seashells to the arrangement of notes along a musical scale, water flowing in rivers or down drains, the motion of the electromagnetic field or the structure of DNA, the mysterious spiral is everywhere! The examples are endless. Secondly, it uses the energy of thirteen, a number that – with the exception of meters in the metric system – is conspicuously absent in most of our current measuring or counting systems. Thirteen's energy is a fantastically important key to understanding and synthesising all combined energies; it's a fundamental missing link!

Two major patterns of spiralling energy constitute the foundation of our system. The first pattern is found in universal energies related to cosmic laws and cosmic truth. They reflect principles that are constants throughout the universe and are continually changing in the ways they manifest. Thirteen universal energies cycle in continuing upward spirals of awareness. The second pattern is found in Earth energies, which are the energies most relevant to our human proficiency. These energies are more specific to our lives on Earth, and they build upon one another, creating a non-hierarchical foundation for what comes next. Each contributes an important piece to understanding the whole of our earthly experience. Participation with these energies occurs at a lower or higher vibration, depending upon our choices and the development of our conscious awareness. Each of us aligns specifically with one of the earth energies at birth. Hence it is an individual mission to explore and discover how to use those energies for personal and planetary evolution.

To begin to understand how our human energy manifests into physical form, we must look at our makeup and our environment. We are electromagnetic beings living in an electromagnetic atmosphere. Seventy percent of our physical makeup is water, which conducts electricity. Our nervous systems, essentially electrical in nature, are sensitive to the magnetic fields around us. Therefore we respond to the fluctuations of energy as it pulses through our bodies and through our environment. Magnetism and electricity are complementary, and one can induce the other. An electrical current will generate a magnetic field and vice versa. Because our bodies are electromagnetic, once we learn to understand our own energy more thoroughly and to participate more consciously with external energies as they pulse through our atmosphere, it is possible we may learn to co-create our own environment by oscillating our electrical charge in a way that attracts other specific energies of our choosing.

Pleiadian-Earth Energy Astrology is the only known system based on the cosmic energies that spiral (unnoticed) through the distinct levels of human consciousness. It is also alone in its use of the number thirteen as an integral player in understanding ourselves and our potential for evolution. Remarkably, this system instructs us in internally and externally expanding and integrating each level of our awareness. Once we understand and earnestly apply the intelligent guidance the cosmic energies offer, results follow naturally.

The opportunities to evolve continuously unfold as each group of spiralling energies ceaselessly winds its way through our levels of consciousness. We integrate each level as we complete it. In this way, we energetically change our relationship to ourselves and to our outer experience simultaneously as we cycle through the system's clear, simple, and direct teachings.

We are pleased to offer this amazing and revelatory new system of viewing our reality, Pleiadian-Earth Energy, and we have created a calendar to accompany the new understandings. This new system shows how the thirteen universal energies and twenty Earth energies can help us realise (more deeply) the potential of who we are and our place in the universe.
